

August 16, 2007

To whom it may concern:

I am very pleased to endorse Mr. Sun Yu-li's effort to bring his sculptures to China. Mr. Sun is a renowned sculptor based in Singapore and his works have been shown throughout the city-state. He is now endeavoring to bring his work to China and to display it in Shanghai, Beijing, and hopefully other cities. I understand that China World Hotel in Beijing and Shangri-La Pudong in Shanghai are thinking of being venue sponsors.

Aside from the artistic value of these displays, we are hoping to work together with Mr. Sun to use the publicity around his displays to raise money for charitable purposes. The World Bank is organizing the Second China Development Marketplace to raise money to support non-profit groups in China working on social and environmental issues. We are discussing with Mr. Sun a collaboration in which the proceeds from the auction of one of his sculptures would be donated to one or more charitable groups identified through the Development Marketplace.

We hope that you will be able to extend assistance to Mr. Sun for his worthwhile project.

Yours sincerely,

David Dollar
Country Director, China